Dear Fellow-economist,

When the Committee on the Status of Women in the Economics Profession first met last May we discussed the pros and cons of trying to set up a roster of women economists, and this subject has recurred at each of our later meetings. Over the past few months, however, we have acquired from various sources the names of, and information about, several hundred women economists of whom you are one. Our decision about compiling a roster has in a sense been made for us and I write you for all the help you can give.

Enclosed are two copies of the registration form we used in Toronto and at other smaller meetings. UNLESS YOU COMPLETED ONE OF THESE IN TORONTO, will you please fill out the form and return it? Will you give the unused form to some other woman economist you know, and ask her to duplicate it before she completes and returns it? She should then get in touch with at least one other woman economist, with similar instructions. We hope by this chain-letter device to register 100% of the women economists in short order. Since we are having particular difficulty in locating people in nonacademic organizations, please give this problem special attention if you can.

Employment is a major reason for setting up the roster formally. You will find enclosed a list of the job openings for which we have been asked to find applicants. Please look through them carefully, and please share the list or any part of its information with other women economists you know. We will continue to notify you, and others, of our news of the market for economists; the Committee continually receives appeals for help from government, academic, business, and nonprofit organizations looking for women economists at all levels.

Much has happened since our first meeting and we are working to make more happen. Watch the American Economic Review: our first annual report appears in the May Papers and Proceedings, and we expect an article about guidelines for affirmative action to be ready shortly. If you get in touch with the Committee member nearest you, there may be news of local meetings or activities as well.

Yours,

Carolyn Shaw Bell

NEWSLETTER OF THE AEA
COMMITTEE ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN
IN THE ECONOMICS PROFESSION

Registration Suite, Toronto, December 26-28, 1972: -- During the Allied Social Science Association meetings in Toronto, we furnished a registration and information suite for women economists. Despite the lack of information on the official program, word spread rapidly, assisted by posters and announcements, so that visitors were numerous and frequent. A Committee member or volunteer was present during the entire time the suite was available, (8 AM to 6 PM on Thursday and Friday) and people met to exchange ideas, information, renew acquaintances, or get acquainted in a very heartening atmosphere. Both the telephone and the bulletin board on the door served as a message center. (This was particularly useful since the central message center at the convention broke down the first day.) The Committee brought a list of 32 job openings, which was rapidly supplemented as 41 prospective employers came to register their openings. About 105 women filed registration blanks, so they could be added to our growing list of women economists, and took away information about the resolutions passed last year by the AEA, the findings of our Committee's questionnaire, and news of other activities.

AEA Session, December 28, "Women Economists: Guidelines for Their Education and Employment." -- The major event at Toronto for women was the session planned and presented by the Committee and very well attended; a large room at a non-headquarters hotel was full. Carolyn Bell opened the session with a short summary of our work to date, emphasizing that we had only preliminary results from our survey of colleges and universities. Walter Adams and Collette Moser followed with their "bigot and victim" presentation; Walter illustrated the irrationality of most arguments used to discriminate against women by using them to justify discrimination against men. They both stressed the need to decrease imperfections in the market for economists, recommending that every academic department undertake self analysis and adopt more positive attitudes and practices towards the employment and education of women on the merits of the case. Following this introduction, most of the session consisted of Committee members presenting the draft guidelines. People attending the session responded favorably, with stimulating and useful discussion; most economists present sympathized with the tone and purpose of the guidelines. We have tried to construct guidelines to help those who really want to look at institutional sexism and are honestly attempting to change positively, the employment or education of women. We want our guidelines to be illustrative and helpful rather than mandatory; we also recognize the wide diversity of institutions and their positions.

Business Meeting, December 28: -- The first annual report of the Committee's activities, presented Friday evening, will appear in the May Papers and Proceedings issue of the AER. Watch for it; it gives the first hard data on supply and demand of women economists. Only two minor questions were raised from the floor, so in general we feel the Association is supportive of the 1971 resolutions.

Follow-up on Guidelines: -- The Committee is currently rewriting the guidelines to apply to academic institutions, business, and government; we're grateful for comments we received in discussion and from letters. We plan to publish the revised guidelines probably in the American Economic Review.

Committee Membership: -- Ken Galbraith is now a regular member of the Committee, and Ken Arrow, new president of the AEA, an ex officio member.

Federation of Organizations for Professional Women: -- This Committee, as a committee has joined the newly organized Federation of Organizations for Professional Women. We hope the Federation will provide economies of scale for a national registry, legislative activities, publicity, and placement.

Roster of Women Economists: -- Since the AEA does not have plans for a new directory in the immediate future, the Committee is concerned about the absence of any list of women economists. Such information is especially needed by those who hire economists and those who appoint committee and board members. Since a roster is an effective source of information we propose to create one; at present we have the names of over 500 women economists and we are counting on you to increase that number. With a more complete list containing name, address, educational background, current employment, job preference and availability for each of you, we can provide employers with aggregate data on the supply of women economists and individual data on the demand for jobs by women economists. Employers and other users of the annotated roster would pay a fee. We would like to make available to you, if you wish to know other women in the field, a simple listing of names and addresses. Would you be interested in purchasing such a directory for approximately $5.00, (this is of course substantially lower than the rate for employers, who will provide a subsidy to you.) If enough of you are interested we will have the list printed. We hope you will have ideas on publicizing the existence of our roster and ideas on how to extend its data base.

Registration and Information: -- Since December, the Committee has heard from a number of people who learned about our existence, or our activities, from someone who had visited our suite in Toronto. We expect to have a similar facility available next year, and will plan for it more extensively. Any regional meeting of economists should, we suspect, arrange for such a place to register and inform women, and our Executive Secretary (H. B. Munzer) will be happy to provide sample registration forms, employer registration blanks, copies of the resolutions, etc., if anyone wishes to duplicate them for such an effort. Just be sure to return the registration information so that our central list can be as complete as possible.

Be On the Program: -- Walter Heller has written to us that he is interested in increasing the number of women on the AEA program in December, 1973. Anyone interested should write him directly. (Department of Economics, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455)

Get Yourself in Print: -- The newly-reissued Challenge welcomes manuscripts on economic issues (3,000 - 4,000 words) and its a magazine, not a journal. Carolyn Bell and Barbara Bergmann are on the editorial board. Send your article to Myron Sharpe, 901 North Broadway, White Plains, New York 10603. Social Policy (Alan Gartner, Suite 500, 184 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10010) is looking for more women contributors and wants particularly discussions of the economic/social policy aspects of human services.

Next Meeting of the Committee: -- The next meeting of this Committee will be April 7 and 8 in New York City. We will continue to work on the guidelines and the roster, as noted above, and discuss financial problems and establishment of a monitoring mechanism. There will be a luncheon meeting for all interested women economists who will be in the New York area. Please contact Peggy Cahn, Fed. Res. Board, NYC, 732-5700 X 8023, OR Louise B. Wolitz, Fordham Univ., Bronx, New York, 933-2233 X 409, OR Harriet Hinck, Trenton State College, Trenton, N.J. 08625, OR Florence Weiss, NERA, 80 Broad St., NYC, 10004, 344-3939 FOR RESERVATIONS IF YOU DO NOT HAVE THEM.
