

Disclosure Statement for Baysan

Manuscript: Persistent Polarizing Effects of Persuasion: Experimental Evidence from Turkey

By: Ceren Baysan

Colchester, United Kingdom, June 7, 2022

-Financial support for Ceren Baysan:

- Financial support came from the NSF Graduate Research Fellowship program in form of stipend.
- Financial support came from the Weatherhead Center for International Affairs at Harvard University in the form of wages as a postdoctoral fellow.
- Financial support came from the University of Essex in the form of wages as an assistant professor.

-Financial support for the project:

- JPAL Governance Initiative and the Center for Middle Eastern Studies at UC Berkeley

-Relevant relations for Ceren Baysan:

- The author declares she has no relevant material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.
- The author declares not to have any paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of any profit-making or non-profit entity.
- None of the author's close relatives have any relevant paid or unpaid positions as officer, director, or board member of any profit-making or non-profit entity whose policy positions, goals or financial interests relate to this research.

-Prior review:

- The authors were free to write the paper without any external party reviewing the paper prior to circulation.

-IRB approval:

- The IRB approval was issued under University of California, Berkeley Federalwide Assurance #00006252.

Ceren Baysan
Assistant Professor
University of Essex