To whom it may concern,

I am writing concerning the paper titled "What students learn in economics 101: Time for a Change" of which I am, with Professor Samuel Bowles of Santa Fe Institute, a co-author.

I serve as an unpaid trustee and secretary of the charity CORE Economics Education (registered as a charity in England and Wales No. 117143) that produced the open access (free online) e-text, The Economy, that is discussed (along with many other textbooks) in our paper.

No party (other than the editors of JEL) had any right of review of this paper.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Wendy Carlin". The signature is written in a cursive style.

Sincerely,

Wendy Carlin, Professor of Economics
