

Disclosure Statement of Pierre Bachas, August 20th, 2020

For the submission of “Corporate Taxation Under Weak Enforcement”

The author declares that he has no relevant or material financial interests that relate to the research described in this paper.

The author has benefitted from financial support from the Burch Center for Tax Policy and the Center for Equitable Growth at the University of California Berkeley, and the Julis-Rabinowitz Center for Public Policy and Finance at Princeton University.

The author has accessed the administrative confidential data through collaborations with the Direccion General de Hacienda at the Ministry of Finance and the Direccion General de Investigacion y Estudios at the Central Bank of Costa Rica.

The author is currently employed by the Development Economics Research unit of the World Bank, but is not involved with the country specific program for Costa Rica. The paper was sent to the World Bank’s office for Central America.

Dr Pierre Bachas,